Head's Blog

Having asked for your suggestions about apologies that we should receive I have enjoyed reading through your suggestions. The highlights (my thoughts in italics) for me, were:

You, (I'm talking to YOU) should apologise for not making your Blog more funny. And I've checked two times. TWO! (I'm sorry. No, really - if you'd have checked three times and been let down I'd probably have cried!)

"Pepsi should apologise for wanting to "be" Coke." (The lawyers for Pepsi will be wanting to note the quotations marks. Please!)

John Grisham should apologise for writing the same story over and over and over and over and over and over- and making millions from it. (I imagine he shares an apartment with Joe Eszterhas, and they keep daring each other to sell the same plot one more time, while howling with laughter, and play-fighting by hurling huge handfuls of money back and forth. Maybe Patricia Cornwell comes round occasionally.)

And I think this was from a member of staff:

I would very much like to apologise: for being such an unpleasant, misanthropic person. Oh, and I hate you. (I know who you are by looking at your IP address).

Thank you for those contributions. However, people I don't know have now started sending me their dreams. Yes, I am scared. One nameless person heaped the following on me - I've edited it, for clarity.

"It was happening during my marathon snooze button pushing... about four times, each time altering slightly... marshmallow-happy-land with my bed being outside... when I was living at Curt's but it isn't... this really cool brown and orange 70's carpet... my friend Ryan from Regina, but I don't realise that until much later... like those weird Calvin Klein ads with the wood panelling... now I am in the hallway... they are becoming coated with some sort of Limestone powder that is seeping from their pores... Just then a European woman... and said, "Yeah, like mucklucks"... having to move their cold bodies out of my house... And that is when I got up for real." (Now there's a man you'd be happy to have his finger on the nuclear button, eh?)

Keep them coming!

2 WEEKS UNTIL SPORTS DAY KLAXON!!!

Yes that's right, 2 weeks to go until the World's most prestigious athletics event.

Pupils will be competing for their houses to see who will win Sports Day 2018 and lift the trophy for their house.

Early indications suggest it will be close, and that is why we want to see as many parents on the day (Friday 6th July) as possible at Ravenscourt Park cheering on their children as well as taking on Mr Moges to see who can complete the slowest 50 metre sprint.

A letter will go out early next week with information for all.

Reception are really excited to introduce to everyone their new class pet... 'Little Bean' the guinea pig! We have been working hard looking after him, feeding him and cleaning out his cage!

On Tuesday, we will be celebrating 'History Day'. Pupils can dress up as anyone or anything from History and will be taking part in fun History activities throughout the day.

Year 1 have been learning about money in Numeracy this week. We made our own sweet shop and had to pay for items with our own money!

Eid Celebration – what a fantastic event, thoroughly enjoyed by all those who attended. A very special thank you to Miss Kelly and the rest of the PTA who raised an incredible £830!
